

VOGUE

July 25, 2014

SURF'S UP

Dirk Ziff and Harvey Weinstein host summer cocktails to celebrate ASP World Tour Surfing

It was your typical summer rooftop party last night at the Jimmy at the James hotel—that is, if your average roof party guest list consists of pro surfers, fashion designers, and media titans. Celebrating the Association of Surfing Professionals (ASP) World Tour Surfing, Dirk Ziff and Harvey Weinstein toasted talents including Kelly Slater, Stephanie Gilmore, and Courtney Conlogue with refreshing cocktails and sweeping views of a picturesque New York City skyline. Keeping their distance from the pool but engrossed in the television screens showing the surfers in action were Matt Lauer (sans tie), Arthur Sulzberger Jr. and Gabrielle Greene, and hospitality impresario David Rabin. But the fashion flock was also out in full force with former CFDA/Vogue Fashion Fund finalist Marc Alary, Arden Wohl, and Dree Hemingway all taking in the picturesque setting. “It must be incredible to be able to navigate that and have no fear,” said Rachel Roy in a crisp, white Balmain jacket and burned-out Rachel Roy top. “The ocean is how we get our peace.” With Roy was Georgina Chapman, in a slinky, gold-accented frock from her line Marchesa Voyage, who exclaimed, “It must be the ultimate high!” While most guests kept their stilettos and wing tips firmly on solid ground, the consensus was that of longing to surf. “I’ve been surfing for about five years,” said Katie Lee in a plaid shirtdress from Equipment punctuated by a shoulder bag with starfish embellishment from Jimmy Choo. “Some of my favorite surfers are here and I’m geeking out, but surfing changed my life.” As guests lingered, enjoying a rare cool summer night, Katie Holmes arrived—with the perfect urban beach hair—in a frothy, lace dress from Nina Ricci and said, “I love surfing, although I can’t do it.” And with that, the crowd decided to hang ten—on shore.